24 February–4 April 2025

Agenda item 6

Universal periodic review

Report of the Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review*

Democratic Republic of the Congo

* The annex is being circulated without formal editing, in the languages of submission only.

Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review, established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1, held its forty-seventh session from 4 to 15 November 2024. The review of the Democratic Republic of the Congo was held at the 3rd meeting, on 5 November 2024. The delegation of the Democratic Republic of the Congo was headed by the Minister of Human Rights, Chantal Chambu Mwavita. At its 10th meeting, held on 8 November 2024, the Working Group adopted the report on the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

2. On 10 January 2024, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of the Democratic Republic of the Congo: Burundi, China and Dominican Republic.

3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 and paragraph 5 of the annex to Council resolution 16/21, the following documents were issued for the review of the Democratic Republic of the Congo:

(a) A national report submitted/written presentation made in accordance with paragraph 15 (a);¹

(b) A compilation prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in accordance with paragraph 15 (b);²

(c) A summary prepared by OHCHR in accordance with paragraph 15 (c).³

4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Belgium, Costa Rica, members of the core group of sponsors of the resolutions on the human right to a clean, healthy and sustainable environment (Costa Rica, Maldives and Slovenia), Germany, Liechtenstein, Panama, Portugal, on behalf of the Group of Friends on national mechanisms for implementation, reporting and follow-up, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America was transmitted to the Democratic Republic of the Congo through the troika. These questions are available on the website of the universal periodic review.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. The delegation of the Democratic Republic of the Congo noted that during the third cycle of the universal periodic review, held in 2019, 267 recommendations had been addressed to the country, of which 239, or over 80 per cent, had been duly accepted by the Government and followed up with implementation measures.

6. Upon the incentive of the President of the Republic, several measures were thus taken to improve human rights.

7. The national report had been prepared in an inclusive and participatory process in order to better integrate the data and concerns of the various departments, both in Kinshasa and elsewhere in the country. A workshop to validate the report had been held in Kinshasa, bringing together representatives of public institutions, the National Human Rights Commission, civil society organizations, the diplomatic corps and United Nations agencies.

8. The national report highlighted a number of achievements, both in terms of standards and institutions. Important laws had been passed and promulgated in a variety of areas, including the protection of human rights defenders, Indigenous Peoples, people living with disabilities and several other categories of vulnerable people.

³ A/HRC/WG.6/47/COD/3.

9. Particular emphasis had been placed on setting up the National Reparations Fund for Victims of Conflict-Related Sexual Violence and Other Crimes against the Peace and Security of Humanity in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the Special Fund to Compensate Victims of Illicit Acts Carried Out by Uganda.
10. International judicial cooperation continued, alongside the consolidation of domestic efforts in the areas of justice reform, human rights awareness and the prevention of torture and violence of all kinds.
11. Several measures addressed access to both education and healthcare, ranging from the provision of education free of charge to universal healthcare coverage.
12. The appointment of Judith Suminwa Tuluka as Prime Minister and Head of Government, the first woman to hold that position in the country's history, and whose team had been invested in Parliament in June 2024, had been a significant step towards gender equality and the elimination of gender discrimination advocated by the Head of State.
13. In implementing the recommendations of the universal periodic review, the Democratic Republic of the Congo also faced a number of challenges and obstacles which the international community had a duty to condemn, discourage and sanction.
14. They included the recurrence of armed conflicts imposed by certain rebel and terrorist groups, unfortunately supported by the armed forces of foreign States, particularly Rwanda, with complete impunity. That was also the case with the plundering of natural resources in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in complicity with well-known multinationals.
15. Such obstacles led to the destruction of infrastructure and increasing numbers of refugees and internally displaced persons. The Government was counting heavily on technical assistance and multifaceted support from the international community to improve security conditions for civilians in conflict zones.
16. After each cycle of the universal periodic review, an interministerial human rights committee drew up a national implementation plan for the recommendations accepted by the Democratic Republic of the Congo, enabling it to better ensure their application by the relevant technical departments.
17. With regard to the impact on the ground of the National Reparations Fund for Victims of Conflict-Related Sexual Violence and Other Crimes against the Peace and Security of Humanity in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, that structure had already provided some victims with emergency medical care. As part of collective reparations, a number of memorial sites would be established in the near future in Kasika, Kaniola, Mwenga, Bukavu, Goma, Songololo and Tshimbulu.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

18. During the interactive dialogue, 98 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue are to be found in section II of the present report.
19. Ukraine commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for its efforts to reinforce the legal and institutional frameworks.
20. The United Kingdom stated that decades of progress risked being undone following the lifting of the moratorium on the death penalty.
21. The United Republic of Tanzania welcomed the progress achieved despite the political, economic and security challenges in the east of the Democratic Republic of the Congo.
22. The United States called for concentrated efforts to improve the situation of imprisoned persons, including through access to family and legal assistance.
23. Vanuatu commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for the strengthening of the social security system and the development of health insurance.

24. The Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela welcomed the enactment of legal instruments to promote human rights and the implementation of social programmes.
25. Zambia made recommendations.
26. Zimbabwe made recommendations.
27. Armenia recognized efforts to ensure the right to health through the establishment of universal health coverage.
28. Australia expressed concern about the lifting of the moratorium on the death penalty, the extensive gender-based violence, torture and extrajudicial killings.
29. Belgium expressed regret that little progress had been made by the Democratic Republic of the Congo in recent years. It welcomed the adoption of Act No. 23/027 of 15 June 2023 on the protection and responsibility of human rights defenders.
30. Botswana expressed concern about acts of reprisal against human rights defenders and journalists.
31. Brazil welcomed the creation of the National Reparations Fund for Victims of Conflict-Related Sexual Violence and Other Crimes against the Peace and Security of Humanity in the Democratic Republic of the Congo.
32. Bulgaria stressed the need to increase women's participation in public and social life and to address gender-based violence.
33. Burkina Faso welcomed legal reforms to protect the rights of women, children and persons with disabilities.
34. Burundi welcomed the creation of the National Reparations Fund for Victims of Conflict-Related Sexual Violence in the Democratic Republic of the Congo.
35. Cabo Verde expressed concern about the increase in ethnic hate speech and incitement to violence.
36. Cameroon welcomed the strengthening of cooperation with international human rights mechanisms.
37. Canada welcomed the adoption of the Act on the protection and responsibility of human rights defenders.
38. Chile welcomed the adoption of the Act on the protection and responsibility of human rights defenders.
39. China expressed appreciation for the protection by the Democratic Republic of the Congo of the rights of vulnerable groups, including persons with disabilities, women, children and Indigenous Peoples.
40. Colombia welcomed the willingness of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to contribute to the fourth cycle of the universal periodic review.
41. The Congo encouraged the Government to pay particular attention to food insecurity.
42. Costa Rica welcomed efforts to ensure accountability and justice.
43. Côte d'Ivoire commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for the adoption of legislation on the protection of and reparations for victims of conflict-related sexual violence.
44. Cuba welcomed the legislative advances aimed at protecting human rights.
45. Cyprus noted the adoption of legal and regulatory policies to protect human rights.
46. Denmark expressed concern about cases of sexual and gender-based violence and the lack of access to sexual and reproductive health services.
47. Responding to comments and the questions raised by States, the delegation of the Democratic Republic of the Congo stressed that freedom of the press was a fundamental right guaranteed by the Constitution and several international instruments ratified by the country. A new law, Ordinance-Law No. 23/009 of 13 March 2023, had been drafted and promulgated to replace a law dating back 27 years. It lay down the conditions for the exercise of freedom of the press, information and broadcasting by radio and television, the written press or any other means of communication. It enshrined, among other things, the right of access to all public and private sources of information of public interest, as well as penalties for any unjustified withholding of such access.

48. Those freedoms were also guaranteed for the political opposition, whose rights were enshrined in the Constitution and various laws of the land. The opposition was thus well represented in the parliamentary chambers, and the President of the Republic had on several occasions reiterated his commitment to seeing the Parliament ensure that the opposition played an effective role, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution.

49. With regard to the security situation in the east of the country, which was the epicentre of serious human rights violations targeting children, women and journalists, the Government had defined a clear strategy to respond effectively to that crisis, which had lasted for over 30 years, particularly on the military, economic and media fronts.

50. Foreigners legally residing in the Democratic Republic of the Congo did not face problems in integrating or in accessing basic social services. Xenophobia and discrimination had always been banned in the country, which was proof of the guaranteed protection of foreigners and the hospitality of the country's people. The country continued to attract investors in several sectors. The protection of foreigners remained a strategic lever for development, creating a safe and favourable environment.

51. With regard to the right to peace and territorial integrity, the Democratic Republic of the Congo had suffered for decades from unjust foreign interventions that had undermined its stability. The right to peace was a fundamental right, essential to sustainable development and the security of the people.

52. Regarding the protection of LGBT communities, the delegation pointed out that it was not part of the country's values and traditions. However, the intangible core of human rights still applied to those communities, including the principle of non-discrimination, the right to life and the prohibition of torture.

53. To remedy prison conditions and overcrowding, the law provided for measures such as parole, amnesties and presidential pardons. Nonetheless, to relieve prison overcrowding, the Government had received instructions to facilitate the transfer of convicts to other prisons in the interior of the country.

54. With regard to the independence of the judiciary and the strengthening of judicial institutions, article 149 of the Constitution set out the principle of the separation of powers and the independence of the judiciary.

55. The Democratic Republic of the Congo had put in place a transitional justice process to improve the effectiveness of the fight against impunity for international crimes, build the capacity of the judicial system and increase public confidence in the justice system and security services.

56. The commitment to protecting human rights was reflected in the establishment of the National Reparations Fund for Victims of Conflict-Related Sexual Violence and Other Crimes against the Peace and Security of Humanity in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, the creation of the Interministerial Commission for Victim Assistance, support for the reparation programmes and reforms linked to transitional justice and the launch of commemorations of the Congolese genocide driven by economic gain, "Genocost".

57. The Dominican Republic welcomed the commitment by the Head of State to strengthening civilian protection with a national army that respected human rights.

58. Egypt welcomed action on commitments to protect women and promote transitional justice.

59. Eritrea welcomed efforts to realize the right to development.

60. Estonia welcomed the adoption of legislation on the protection of and reparations for victims of conflict-related sexual violence.

61. France noted positive measures taken in economic and social areas.

62. The Gambia commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for its efforts to establish a national mechanism for the prevention of torture.
63. Georgia welcomed the ratification of the African Union Convention for the Protection and Assistance of Internally Displaced Persons in Africa.
64. Germany commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for the adoption of the Act on the protection and responsibility of human rights defenders and called for the removal of restrictive provisions from it.
65. Ghana encouraged the Democratic Republic of the Congo to redouble efforts to decongest overcrowded prisons.
66. The Holy See made recommendations.
67. Iceland made recommendations.
68. India welcomed changes in the Criminal Code to address trafficking in persons.
69. Indonesia welcomed the creation of the National Reparations Fund for Victims of Conflict-Related Sexual Violence in the Democratic Republic of the Congo.
70. Iraq welcomed the determination of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to respect human rights obligations and commitments.
71. Ireland welcomed the adoption of the Act on the protection and responsibility of human rights defenders.
72. Israel encouraged the Government to continue to fight the mpox epidemic.
73. Italy welcomed the creation of the National Reparations Fund for Victims of Conflict-Related Sexual Violence in the Democratic Republic of the Congo.
74. Japan expressed concern regarding the human rights situation in the regions affected by armed conflict.
75. Jordan welcomed the adoption of legislation on the protection of persons with disabilities.
76. Kenya welcomed significant progress in strengthening the legal framework for the protection of human rights.
77. The Lao People's Democratic Republic commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for the promotion and protection of human rights in the country.
78. Latvia encouraged the Democratic Republic of the Congo to continue to fulfil its human rights commitments.
79. Lebanon welcomed awareness-raising on the promotion of human rights.
80. Lesotho commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for human rights training modules at military and national police academies.
81. Liechtenstein made recommendations.
82. Lithuania expressed concern regarding the human rights and security situation in the country.
83. Luxembourg welcomed the adoption of the Act on the protection and responsibility of human rights defenders.
84. Madagascar commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for the creation of the National Reparations Fund for Victims of Conflict-Related Sexual Violence in the Democratic Republic of the Congo.
85. Malawi commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for the steps taken for the protection of human rights, despite the challenges.
86. Malaysia commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for its commitment to human rights and socioeconomic development.
87. Maldives welcomed the establishment of the National Human Rights Commission.

88. Mali welcomed the implementation of a universal healthcare system.
89. Malta expressed regret over the lifting of the moratorium on the death penalty and the reduction of civic space.
90. Mauritania welcomed legislative reforms and constructive cooperation with human rights mechanisms.
91. Mauritius welcomed the establishment of universal health coverage.
92. Responding to the comments made by States, the delegation of the Democratic Republic of the Congo emphasized, with regard to the abolition of the death penalty, that the country was essentially an abolitionist State. The death penalty had not been applied for nearly 50 years, even though it figured in the national criminal legislation, with the exception of a few cases carried out by Rwandan troops during their governance in the 1997 rebellion. The lifting of the moratorium on the death penalty was an administrative measure that did not change the course of action. It was justified in a context of pervasive crime, and more specifically, widespread impunity in areas of conflict and urban violence. Since the moratorium had been lifted no executions had been recorded, and the Parliament was working on measures to prevent any kinds of abuse in that area.
93. The Government continued to take the necessary initiatives to combat all forms of discrimination. An accelerated programme to combat poverty and inequality had been put in place. The country had submitted an exceptional report on its implementation of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women.
94. Mexico acknowledged the adoption of legislation on the protection of the rights of persons with disabilities.
95. Montenegro expressed concern about children's rights and the human rights situation in the east of the country.
96. Morocco commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for the promotion of human rights in public policies and programmes.
97. Mozambique commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for progress in implementing the recommendations from the previous review cycle.
98. Namibia commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for the adoption of legislation on the protection of the rights of persons with disabilities.
99. Nepal welcomed efforts to implement the recommendations from the previous review cycle.
100. The Niger welcomed the strengthening of civic space and the establishment of universal health coverage.
101. Norway welcomed the adoption of legislation on Indigenous Peoples, human rights defenders and reparations for survivors of conflict-related sexual violence.
102. Panama made recommendations.
103. Paraguay welcomed legislative progress on violence against women and girls.
104. The Philippines noted progress in addressing conflict-related sexual violence.
105. Poland encouraged further decisive action to improve the human rights situation.
106. Portugal welcomed the strengthening of the Interministerial Committee on Human Rights.
107. The Republic of Korea welcomed the implementation of the national policy on transitional justice.
108. Romania welcomed measures to improve the normative and institutional framework for human rights.
109. The Russian Federation expressed regret about the considerable impact of the conflict in the east of the country.

110. Saudi Arabia welcomed measures to implement legislation on persons with disabilities.
111. Senegal commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for its efforts to combat sexual violence and discrimination against Indigenous Peoples.
112. Sierra Leone commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for its efforts to strengthen the legal framework for human rights and for the creation of the compensation and reparations funds.
113. Singapore welcomed the National Children's Council and the measures taken to address gender-based violence.
114. Slovenia expressed concern about reports of serious human rights violations, including conflict-related sexual violence.
115. South Africa welcomed the commitment to a victim-centred approach to transitional justice.
116. South Sudan commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for the steps taken to improve the legal framework for the protection of human rights.
117. Spain welcomed efforts to ensure accountability and to end impunity.
118. The Sudan commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for its progress in the field of legislative reform related to human rights.
119. Sweden expressed concern about the security and humanitarian situation in the east of the country.
120. Switzerland made recommendations.
121. Togo commended the Head of State for having actively supported the revitalization of the Human Rights Liaison Unit.
122. Tunisia commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for efforts made to promote the normative and institutional framework for human rights.
123. Türkiye commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for efforts to maintain commitment to the Luanda peace process.
124. Angola commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for the creation of the National Reparations Fund for Victims of Conflict-Related Sexual Violence in the Democratic Republic of the Congo.
125. Algeria commended the Democratic Republic of the Congo for efforts to criminalize hate speech and to protect persons with disabilities and Indigenous Peoples.
126. Ethiopia welcomed measures to improve cooperation with human rights mechanisms.
127. The Kingdom of the Netherlands welcomed the adoption of the Act on the protection and responsibility of human rights defenders, but expressed concern about certain provisions.
128. Viet Nam recognized the establishment of the National Solidarity and Humanitarian Disaster Management Fund.
129. Responding to the comments made by States, the delegation of the Democratic Republic of the Congo stressed that the crisis in the east of the country was the epicentre of the violence, resulting in a wave of human rights violations. Children were the main victims, as schools in the area were targeted by the Rwandan army and terrorist groups supporting the March 23 Movement (M23).
130. Rwanda raised a point of order, stating that it refuted the accusations made by the Democratic Republic of the Congo in attempting to portray Rwanda as responsible for the instability in the east of the country. Rwanda recalled that the universal periodic review should be a cooperative mechanism, based on objective and reliable information and conducted in a transparent, constructive and non-confrontational manner.
131. Rwanda stated that the manipulation of the identity of Congolese and Rwandan communities had led to persecution and political exploitation by successive Governments of the Democratic Republic of the Congo for political gain as it sought to exclude them, especially ethnic Tutsis. Rwanda was seriously concerned about widespread hate speech against and associated targeted killings of Tutsis.

132. The Vice-President of the Human Rights Council reminded delegates that the subject of a point of order should be procedural issues and not the substance of the matter under discussion, and stressed that the present process was multilateral, and not bilateral, in nature.

133. Responding to the point of order raised by Rwanda, the delegation of the Democratic Republic of the Congo asserted that the issues in question concerned human rights, and that it could not present the facts without specifying their causes and origins. The facts alleged by Rwanda were but misleading rhetoric. It was well known that respect for human rights was not always a subject closely monitored by Rwanda.

134. Turning to the issue of child soldiers, the delegation recalled that the Government of the United States had in September 2023 sanctioned the Rwandan Government for the use and recruitment of child soldiers in the M23 proxy troops operating in the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

135. Rwanda raised a point of order, stating that the Democratic Republic of the Congo was the sole subject of the present review, and not Rwanda.

136. The Vice-President recalled that the Human Rights Council and the universal periodic review process did not constitute an appropriate forum in which to raise bilateral issues of a purely political and territorial nature.

137. Reacting to the point of order raised by Rwanda, the delegation of the Democratic Republic of the Congo stressed that things would have been simpler if Rwandan troops had withdrawn from the country. Women and children were the main victims of the lack of security, with over 2 million internally displaced people living in subhuman conditions. The delegation felt that the right solution would be for them all to return to their home areas.

138. On the subject of hate speech, the delegation pointed out that the Democratic Republic of the Congo had a population of 100 million, and 450 tribes, with potential sources of tension owing to land conflicts or other issues arising between communities. The President of the Republic had himself pledged to combat all forms of hate speech and stigmatization.

139. Another major challenge on which the Government was working concerned extractive resources. Mineral exploitation was one of the reasons for the ongoing war in the east of the country. The authorities were working with organizations in the subregion to set up a traceability process and had taken action against Apple, for example, because some of the products used in the manufacture of portable telephones and computers had been taken in the context of the conflict and violence in the east of the country.

140. In its concluding remarks, the delegation reaffirmed the willingness of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to respect its human rights commitments and to implement the recommendations issued by the universal periodic review mechanism. It requested technical and financial partners to continue to support the Government in developing and building its capacities in the field of human rights.
