

the separation of forces which would result from the withdrawal of the Nicaraguan Government's forces from the security zones which were to be established in Nicaragua to facilitate the demobilization of the members of the Nicaraguan resistance. These tasks, he added, would constitute an addition to the mandate of the Observer Group and therefore require the approval of the Council. As he had indicated in informal consultations of the Council, the Secretary-General stated that he believed that the agreements signed at Managua constituted an important step forward in the Central American peace process and, accordingly, he recommended that the Council approve the necessary enlargement of the mandate of the Observer Group.

In another letter dated 19 April 1990<sup>85</sup> addressed to the President of the Council for the attention of the members of the Council, the Secretary-General referred to his report of 15 March 1990,<sup>79</sup> which had been approved by the Council in its resolution 650 (1990) of 27 March 1990. In paragraph 11 of that report, he had indicated that he had asked certain Member States to contribute the 119 additional military observers which were required to cover the shortfall in phase III of the deployment of the Observer Group and to permit the early deployment of phase IV. He stated that, in addition to an offer of 13 additional observers from one of the existing contributing Governments, he had received offers from the Governments of Brazil, Ecuador, India and Sweden to contribute a total of 85 military observers and the decision of a fifth Member State was awaited. Having consulted the Governments of the five countries in which the Observer Group was deployed, he proposed to accept the offers. In a letter dated 10 April 1990,<sup>86</sup> the President of the Council informed the Secretary-General as follows:

"I have the honour to inform you that your letter dated 19 April 1990 concerning the composition of the United Nations Observer Group in Central America<sup>85</sup> has been brought to the attention of the members of the Council. They have considered the matter and agreed to the proposal in your letter."

At its 2919th meeting, on 20 April 1990, the Council proceeded with the discussion of the item entitled "Central America: efforts towards peace".
