The urgent need for effective action on poverty reduction is reflected in the United Nations millennium development goals, which call for the proportion of people living in extreme poverty to be halved by the year 2015. Poverty is a multidimensional and dynamic phenomenon with complex and interlinked issues requiring an integrated focus on economic, social and environmental areas.

Against this background, the Committee on Poverty Reduction shall serve as a regional forum to assist members and associate members in meeting the objectives of (a) developing strategies and policies to reduce poverty in a rapid and sustained manner and improve the quality of life of the poor, (b) strengthening national statistical infrastructure to collect, analyse and disseminate statistics through the promotion of common methodologies for intercountry comparisons and improvement in the quality of statistics and (c) developing and sharing experiences concerning best practices in poverty reduction in both urban and rural areas.

The goal of the Committee shall be to enable the members and associate members of ESCAP to better design and implement pro-poor policies and strategies to attain the millennium development goals.

B. Under the overall supervision of the Commission, the Committee shall:

1. Review the progress made and obstacles encountered in achieving both the quantitative and qualitative aspects of the relevant millennium development goals.

5. Review and evaluate the implementation and effectiveness of the relevant programme of work of ESCAP and make recommendations to the Commission concerning future programmes of work and, in this process, ensure that cross-sectoral issues such as the special concerns of the Pacific island countries, landlocked developing countries, least developed countries and economies in transition, the environment, human resources development and women in development are adequately addressed.

6. Strengthen liaison with governmental and non-governmental, regional and bilateral organizations as well as private sector entities to support poverty reduction policies and strategies that maximize synergies and avoid duplication of effort.

58/2. Poverty reduction for sustainable development

The Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific,

Recalling the millennium development goals contained in the United Nations Millennium Declaration, which called for the proportion of people living in extreme poverty to be halved by 2015,

Recognizing that the Monterrey Consensus adopted at the International Conference on Financing for Development, held at Monterrey, Mexico, in March 2002, emphasized the need to mobilize and increase the effective use of financial resources and achieve the national and international economic conditions needed to fulfill internationally agreed development goals, including those contained in the Millennium Declaration, to eliminate poverty, improve social conditions and raise living standards,

Taking note with appreciation of the increase in official development assistance by some developed countries as a welcome step towards meeting the urgent need to achieve the United Nations target of 0.7 per cent of gross national product, including the commitment by the European Union to increase the level of official development assistance to 0.39 per cent of gross national product as well as the announcement by the United States of America at the International Conference on Financing for Development of a projected increase in annual official development assistance by 5 billion dollars,

Recalling the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development, held at Rio de Janeiro in 1992, particularly principle 5 of the Rio Declaration and chapter 3 of Agenda 21, which called for eradicating and combating Agenda 21, which called for eradicating and combating poverty as an indispensable requirement for sustainable development,

Reaffirming that poverty reduction is the most important tool to achieve sustainable development and contribute to world peace,

Recognizing that the lack of development and consequent poverty will cause environmental degradation, which in turn leads to increasing poverty, and that, in particular, the pervasive deterioration of soil due to overfarming poses serious challenges to sustainable development in the Asian and Pacific region, making the return of overcultivated land to forest and grasslands, in keeping with national plans, a matter of prime urgency,

Also recognizing that sustainable development, including the reduction of poverty, will depend on enhancing the participation of the poor in decision-making that directly affects their lives, through good governance, as described in the United Nations Millennium Declaration and the Monterrey Consensus,
