I. Introduction and methodology (Recommendation 13)

1. Brunei Darussalam's first national report for the Universal Periodic Review (UPR) was discussed at the 6th Session of the Working Group of the UPR on 8 December 2009. Brunei Darussalam accepted 33 recommendations and submitted responses to 25 recommendations at the 13th Session of the Human Rights Council (HRC) on 19 March 2010, where its national report was adopted.

2. Since the adoption of the first report, the Government of His Majesty the Sultan and Yang Di Pertuan of Brunei Darussalam has made efforts in its commitment to implement these recommendations through all relevant parties that are active in promoting the welfare and rights of the people, including government agencies, and Non-Governmental Organisations (NGOs).

3. This report of Brunei Darussalam for the second cycle of the UPR was prepared in accordance with the general guidelines for the UPR (A/HRC/DEC/17/119). The report outlines action taken by Brunei Darussalam with regards to the human rights development in the country and implementation of the accepted recommendations mentioned above.

4. The Inter-Agency Expert Group (IAEG), established in April 2008 with the main task of preparing the national report for the HRC, initiated monthly discussions for the UPR in preparation for the drafting of the national report. This national report was compiled after a series of consultations amongst relevant government agencies. NGOs were also consulted during this process.

5. Details of the UPR were disseminated and shared amongst relevant agencies and enquiries/inputs could be sent to the e-mail dedicated to UPR related information at brunei-upr@mfa.gov.bn.

II. Developments in the legislative, normative and institutional framework

A. Legislative Council

6. On 1 June 2011, the Legislative Council membership was increased from 29 to 33 members which, for the first time, included two (2) women.

B. Government agencies (Recommendation 7)

7. Brunei Darussalam continues to promote and protect human rights in the country through the inter-agency¹ consultative mechanism, in cooperation with NGOs.

8. The National Council on Social Issues identified 11 social issues that need to be addressed in Brunei Darussalam, namely poverty, housing for the poor, unemployment, social security, community's mentality, immoral behaviour, crime, women issues, family institution, elderly issues and issues of persons with disabilities. Six (6) Special Committees were thus established - the Special Committee on Poverty, Special Committee on Community's Mentality, the Special Committee on Immoral Behaviour, the Special Committee on Crime Prevention, the Special Committee on Family Institution and Women, and the Special Committee on Persons with Disabilities and the Elderly.

C. Domestic legislation (Recommendations 8, 22, 26 and 32)

9. Various legislations have since been introduced, enforced and/or amended to ensure the continued promotion and protection of human rights in the country. These include:

- The Syariah Penal Code Order, 2013, was gazetted on 22 October 2013. It is an Order that relates to laws in respect of Syariah crimes and any matters connected therewith and is aimed at providing basic human rights. The Order will be implemented gradually in three (3) phases to ensure sufficient time to introduce the Order to the public and to allow for its proper and effective enforcement. The Order generally applies to both Muslims and non-Muslims, and its applicability to: i) Muslims only; ii) non-Muslims only, and iii) both Muslims and non-Muslims, depends on the types of offences as stated in the Order.
- The Children and Young Persons Act (Cap 219), provides for the protection and rehabilitation of children and the establishment of the Juvenile Courts and Action Teams on Child Protection. The latter has been enumerated for the purposes of co-ordinating locally-based services to families, children and young persons in cases where children or young persons are suspected of being in need of protection. To ensure that children are protected whilst under police custody, this Act prohibits them from being associated with adult offenders. It also ensures the protection of their identity with any court proceedings.
- The Islamic Family Law Act (Cap 217) and the Married Women Act (Cap 190), amended in 2010, includes provisions dealing with 'dharar syarie' or domestic violence. Pursuant to the amendments, the laws provide better protection for victims of domestic violence. The laws explicitly define the meaning of domestic violence and provide an extensive protection for abused victims including the issuance of protection orders and expedited orders by the court and the award of compensation to the abused victims.
- The Employment Order 2009 replaced the Labour Act (Cap 93), to include laws relating to the employment of workers, including immigrant employees and domestic workers. Specific provisions relating to the employment of women, young persons and children are also provided for under this Order.
- The Compulsory Religious Education Act (Cap 215), enforced on 1 January 2013, provides for 7 years of compulsory religious education for all Muslim children. The Act requires every parent whose child has attained a compulsory religious school age to ensure his child is enrolled as a pupil in a religious school in that year and remains as such for the duration of the compulsory religious education.
- The Penal Code (Cap 22) was amended in 2012 in order to strengthen the laws to further protect the young and vulnerable from sexual exploitation and also provide prosecutors with a handle to prosecute a wider range of sexual offences. Among the new sexual offences introduced by the amendments are commercial sex, child pornography, prostitution, engaging in sexual activity in the presence of a person under the age of 16, sexual grooming, voyeurism, offences that peruses technology as a medium as well as offences related to the outraging of one's modesty. The new offences of commercial sex with a person under 18 outside Brunei Darussalam (Section 377E) and tour outside Brunei Darussalam for commercial sex with a person under 18 (Section 377F) allow for extra-territorial application on Bruneians who may commit such offences abroad and contributes towards the global fight against child sex tourism.
- The Workplace Safety and Health Order 2009, enforced on 1 August 2013, requires all employers to take measures to ensure the safety and health of their employees at work, such as by providing adequate instruction, information, training and supervision. A steering committee² has been established for the implementation of this Order. Seminars would be held in the near future to promote awareness on health and safety across the country.

- The Consumer Protection (Fair Trading) Order 2011 has been enforced and fully implemented with effect from 1 January 2012. The Order is supported by the Cancellation of Contracts Regulation 2011 and the Opt-Out Practices Regulation 2011. The objective of the Order is to protect consumers' interests and uphold their rights against any unfair practices by suppliers. Consumers aggrieved by unfair practice can seek recourse to civil remedies before the Court, provided that the claim is within the prescribed limit and limitation period.
- The Price Control Act (Cap 142) enforced on 13 March 1974 was last amended on 26 December 2012. The amendments included a list of price control items and Price Control (Cheap Sale Price) Regulations 2012. The objective of the Act amongst other is to control the price of selected necessity items to help the consumers of Brunei Darussalam especially the low income earners in their daily expenses; to ensure that any promotion and cheap sale price activities are conducted in a healthy manner; and to ensure that any increase in price is at a reasonable level.
- The Newspaper Act (Cap 105) regulates printing, publishing, production and reproduction of newspapers in Brunei Darussalam including matters relating to the collection and publication of news and the distribution of newspapers. Conditions on granting permits are determined by the Ministry of Home Affairs. (addressing recommendation 22)

20. Brunei Darussalam actively participates in the ASEAN Heads of Specialist Unit meetings to exchange information and foster international cooperation to combat Trafficking-in-Persons (TIPs) offences in the region. It is also currently participating in the Experts' Working Group on the development of the ASEAN Convention on TIPs, as well as the Regional Plan of Action on TIPs.

C. Collaboration between Brunei Darussalam and international bodies related to human rights

21. Brunei Darussalam has received visits from representatives of international bodies relevant to human rights including the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

22. Technical assistance has been given on programmes relating to children such as regulating and monitoring the quality of early childhood education. Trainings for relevant teachers and officers are provided through workshops, seminars and conferences for personnel dealing with early childhood education. These activities are held in cooperation with the Asia-Pacific Regional Network on Early Childhood's, which plays a potential role in support of policy and advocacy in the region.

23. A number of UNICEF representatives had visited the country and agreed to assist in areas such as implementing national standards on child protection and welfare homes, and the services and provision on child protection in the country.

24. The Ministry of Education, through the technical assistance of UNICEF, has engaged the International Child Resource Exchange Institute from California, U.S.A. A feasibility study on the provision of high quality Early Childhood Care and Education for children aged 3 and 4 is currently on-going. The outcome of the study will cover recommendations in areas such as teacher training and education, and possible models of Early Childhood Care and Education appropriate to the country's cultural and socio-economic background.

25. Brunei Darussalam also works with the UN Women through the ASEAN framework, in terms of accessing technical assistance on innovative programmes and strategies to foster women's empowerment and gender equality.

IV. Updates on the promotion and protection of human rights and follow-up action on the recommendations accepted in the first session of the Universal Periodic Review (2009) (Recommendations 10, 14, 26, and 32)

Wawasan 2035 and the 10th National Development Plan 2012-2017

26. Brunei Darussalam remains committed to advance itself as a nation with highly skilled, well-educated and accomplished citizens; a high quality standard of life; and a dynamic and sustainable economy, as outlined under the Brunei Vision 2035 (Wawasan Brunei 2035). Towards realising these goals, Brunei Darussalam is currently in the Tenth Series of its National Development Plan (2012–2017), which emphasises on national development efforts that can generate faster and higher economic growth.

27. The Plan outlines six (6) strategic development thrusts which include efforts to further diversify its economy through the promotion of investment, enhancing quality of education, improving productivity, encouraging research and innovation as well as fostering a more conducive business environment. In addition, Brunei Darussalam also continues to provide better infrastructure and facilities for its population, encourage greater opportunities for women, improve social safety nets for all, and maintain high standards of governance in the public and private sectors.

28. Towards ensuring timely and effective results, a monitoring and evaluation mechanism has been put in place to ensure that policy measures are aligned and that projects can be carried out and completed as targets. With this Plan, the use of alternative financing opportunities would also be considered.

National achievement in the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs)

29. A steady progress has been observed in the country's achievement of the MDGs with almost all of the targets already been reached. Brunei Darussalam is progressively improving on equity through the introduction and implementation of various social safety net programmes, provision of equal educational opportunities, as well as in the sustainable safeguard of its environment and natural resources.

30. Brunei Darussalam continues to maintain the status in achieving most of the health related targets set in the Millennium Development Goals. These include significant reductions in under-five mortality rate, infant mortality rate and has consistently maintained very low maternal mortality ratio. This can be attributed to the high access to reproductive health care, immunisation programmes as well as almost 100% deliveries in hospitals by skilled health personnel. The prevalence of HIV/AIDS in Brunei Darussalam also remains at a very low level.

The institution of family and safeguarding the rights of vulnerable groups

31. In Brunei Darussalam, the family institution represents the basic core of society which epitomises a solid foundation that every member of the community can depend on. Despite the emergence of nuclear family structures, the extended family system still represents a dominant family structure throughout the country. The reliable support system characterised by the extended family structure has managed to promote bonding and cohesiveness with the family and society that, in turn, develops into a strong basis for social safety net. Recognising of the important role that strong and harmonious family institutions play in shaping a community to be more resilient and progressive, the first Sunday of May has been declared as Brunei Darussalam's National Family Day starting in May 2012. The day commemorates the importance of the family unit as the backbone of society and as the basic unit of support, love and care for an individual.

32. Realising that human resources are its most valuable asset, Brunei Darussalam places priority on the social welfare and development of its people, including women, children, persons with disabilities and the elderly. Various policies, community programmes, and social services have been undertaken or introduced in caring for the vulnerable groups of this country.

33. The Special Committee on Family Institution and Women³ was established in order to better coordinate national efforts towards strengthening family institutions as well as promoting and protecting the rights of women. The Plan of Action on Family Institution and Women is currently implemented to coordinate national efforts towards promoting and protecting the rights of women and the family institution. Eight (8) priority areas have been identified namely: Strengthen Family Institution; Work Life Balance; Economy; Women and Legal Rights; Information on Families; Health; Education; and National Mechanism for Women Empowerment.

34. Recipients of welfare benefits are also provided with a micro-credit financing scheme called the Self-Reliance Scheme, established in June 2006. This scheme helps to alleviate the financial burden of poor families and reduce their dependence on welfare benefits in order to support their livelihood by stimulating a culture of self-sustenance. In January 2011, this scheme was re-designed and renamed as the Empowerment Programme to incorporate mandatory training on entrepreneurship, business, and financial management as well as self-development to ensure business competence and sustainability.

A. Children (Recommendations 4, 17, 20, and 21)

35. The 2012 National Statistics indicated that children comprised 33.7 per cent of the country's population and hence Brunei Darussalam has made numerous efforts, including various legislations to promote and protect their rights.

36. The Government of Brunei Darussalam, through the Community Development Department, continues to carry out its functions in promoting, protecting and safeguarding the rights of children in the country which include counselling, intervention, monthly welfare allowance, public awareness campaigns; programmes on probation and community services for children offenders; and celebrating Universal Children's Day at the national level.

37. Brunei Darussalam is currently implementing the Plan of Action on Family Institution and Women which also covers children issues which includes the strengthening of parenting skills; promoting moral integrity among school children; propagation of child online protection; and providing residential schooling, home tuition educational subsidies and transportation for children from poor families. In implementing these programmes, Government agencies are strongly supported by NGOs, the corporate sector and all levels of the community.

38. Various awareness activities, such as roadshows and talks, on domestic violence and child abuse have continued to be held throughout the country. Public education campaigns on the rights of the child and the negative consequences of child abuse are constantly conducted through schools, mass media and at the grass roots level by various government agencies and NGOs. Children are also regularly informed and consulted on their rights through regular road shows to schools. Protection and rehabilitation programmes include welfare benefits, which comprise sustenance allowances, education allowances and disability allowances; counselling; family conferencing; regulating and monitoring of child care centres and home shelters.

39. Brunei Darussalam has also introduced the Temporary Foster Care Scheme aimed at giving the children who are in need of protection and care, a placement with a family institution where the children will receive love, guidance, and attention. Proper guidelines are in place to ensure the eligibility of the temporary foster parents.

40. In March 2010, the Juvenile Court was established which is presided over by a Juvenile Court Magistrate that deals with three (3) categories of cases: (i) criminal offences committed by juveniles; (ii) juveniles who are beyond parental control; and (iii) juveniles who are in need of care and protection orders. The introduction of the juvenile justice system has empowered Magistrates with alternative sentencing options which include the making of probation orders, community service orders, and placement in an approved school, home or a detention centre. The Juvenile Court is committed to rehabilitating and reintegrating young offenders back into society in order to preserve and safeguard their future.

41. The Probation and Community Service Unit⁴, under the Department of Community Development, Ministry of Culture, Youth & Sports, assists the Juvenile Court in deciding the appropriateness of youth and adult offenders for probation; supervising probationers; arranging and managing community service; and developing and conducting rehabilitative programmes.

42. Under the provisions of Children and Young Persons Act, Chapter 219, the Action Team on Child Protection⁵ was established to oversee cases of child abuse which include corporal punishment. A Standard of Procedure was also developed to investigate cases of child abuse. Awareness campaigns and parenting skills programmes are constantly conducted to educate the public and parents on alternative forms of discipline.

43. Brunei Darussalam submitted its combined second and third periodic reports to the Committee on the Rights of the Child in October 2013.

B. Women (Recommendations 14, 15, and 16)

44. Women have contributed actively to decision-making processes and attained senior positions in various legal, political, financial and managerial professions. The highest posts attained included Ambassador-at-Large, Attorney-General with ministerial rank, Deputy Minister, Permanent Secretaries, Auditor-General, Solicitor-General, Accountant-General and as Chief Executive Officers in both the public and private sectors including banks. Two of the four universities⁶ in Brunei Darussalam are currently headed by women. Women also serve in Islamic institutes of higher education and as Prosecutors both in the Syariah courts and Civil courts.

45. The Government of Brunei Darussalam encourages equal opportunities for women in the workforce and in nation building as mentioned in the 'Economic Strategy' of the Strategy and Policy Development Outline.

46. The Employment Order 2009 provides conditions relating to maternity benefits which a pregnant woman in confinement is entitled to, including rest, pay and prohibition against termination during maternity leave. In January 2011, the Maternity Leave Regulation was introduced as a measure towards coordination of the pre- and post-natal needs as well as the health interest of working mothers. Under the new regulation, women are now entitled to 105 days of maternity leave as opposed to 56 days pre-2011. Other new regulations recently introduced effectively removed discrimination against women civil servants such that women civil officers now receive the same fringe benefits as men civil servants in the area of housing, educational allowances for children; and 4-yearly travel allowances for the family.

47. In April 2011, the Council of Women of Brunei Darussalam established a counselling unit to tackle cases of domestic violence, particularly towards women, and supporting government initiatives in tackling such issues. The unit organises community counselling and conducts parenting skill programmes for parents.

48. Women issues are being addressed and coordinated through the Plan of Action on Family Institution and Women, particularly to increase efforts in helping single mothers, women with disabilities and poor women to attain economic reliance through employment, entrepreneurship and capacity building. This Plan also stipulates the need to review national legislations and regulations so as to incorporate the gender perspective and women's rights in the workplace as well as to mobilise technical and financial support for women in need. Empowerment programmes and its supporting mechanisms are also undertaken for the advancement and development of women in the country. All these programmes are implemented in close cooperation among Government agencies, NGOs, the corporate sector and all stakeholders within the community.

49. In April 2012, Brunei Darussalam submitted its combined initial and second periodic reports to the Committee on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women.

C. Persons with disabilities (Recommendation 14)

50. The Special Committee on Persons with Disabilities and the Elderly⁷ is currently implementing its Action Plan on Persons with Disabilities that includes issues on advocacy; health; protection; education; employment; finance; participation in the community; volunteerism; accessibility; transportation; and database on persons with disabilities.

51. The Government's efforts in promoting and protecting the rights of persons with disabilities in Brunei Darussalam are strongly supported and complemented by various NGOs which look after the welfare of specific disability causes. Acknowledging the NGOs' work, the Government has allocated a complimentary site upon which they can build permanent premises for their offices and service facilities. In addition, a special budgetary allocation is made available for these NGOs to apply for financial assistance in order to cover their operational and capacity building activities. Another financial assistance scheme has also been introduced in the form of voluntary salary deductions by public servants who wish to donate to the NGOs. A public donation drive through the Short Messaging Service was also initiated.

52. Brunei Darussalam also observes and organises programmes or activities to commemorate the International Day for Persons with Disabilities; Autism Day; White Cane Day; International Deaf Day; and Down-Syndrome Day in cooperation with NGOs.

53. Discussions to formulate legislations on Persons with Disabilities are on-going with the view to promote inclusive society and address various issues, which includes access to infrastructure, education, health, recreation and sports, culture and information. These would ensure the promotion and protection of the rights of persons with disabilities from a rights-based approach.

54. A building control order is also being drafted with the provision to ensure unhindered access for all persons into public and private buildings and facilities.

D. The elderly (Recommendation 14)

55. Brunei Darussalam continues to safeguard the welfare of the elderly by maintaining strong family ties supported by the core value of the extended family system which continues to be widely practised. As of November 2013, the Old Age and Disability Pensioners registered under the Department of Community Development is just over 25,000 people.

56. To ensure that no citizen is deprived of basic human needs, the Government of Brunei Darussalam has implemented and promoted various social safety net programmes. The country launched the 'Caring for the Elderly Project' with the objectives to: (i) maintain family values; (ii) enhance the obligation of children and next of kin to care for their aged parents or family members; (iii) ensure the quality of life of the elderly are maintained; and (iv) raise public awareness on the need to care for the elderly.

57. In 2013, the Senior Citizens Activity Centre was established. Its objectives are to: (i) meet the needs of the elderly such as to continue to enjoy an active life and be able to engage in activities; (ii) act as a community support centre for organising activities involving the community in the nation's development; and (iii) further encourage self-help amongst the elderly and encourage experience sharing with the younger generation of the community.

E. Youth

58. Towards strengthening the nation's capacity and capability to support greater competitiveness and develop highly specialised professionals in all economic sectors, a Human Resource Development Fund has been set up. The objective of this fund is aimed towards ensuring that education and training opportunities are made available in order to develop a more marketable local workforce, and reduce dependency on foreign labour. The fund supports programmes and schemes which are targeted especially for youths and those within the working age. It also covers the provisions of scholarships and training in line with the need of the industry. Such programmes and schemes include:

- Technical and Vocational Education Scholarship Scheme: This scheme provides opportunities to 'O' and 'A' Level school leavers with financial difficulties to pursue further studies in local private institutions;
- Human Capacity Building in the Private Sector Scheme: This scheme aims to further strengthen the private sectors in the country, by providing opportunities for employees, especially those that do not have the financial means, to upgrade their academic and professional qualifications; and
- Training and Employment Scheme: This scheme aims to promote youth development through the provision of practical trainings and work related experiences to enhance competencies and increase skills required for employment.

59. Another initiative towards youth empowerment is the establishment of the Youth Development Centre in 1996 under the Ministry of Culture Youth and Sports. The Centre which caters for Bruneian youths aged between 18 - 40 years old has the following objectives:

- To provide skill training and self-development for youths who are unable to continue formal education, and those who are currently unemployed;
- To provide assistance and consultation on job opportunities to both youth and employers; and
- To provide training for youth to build up their capacity to become successful entrepreneurs in the future.

60. Currently the Centre offers nine courses under the Youth Development Programme including ICT; Culinary & Banquet; Cakes & Pastry; Beauty Therapy; Fashion Design & Embroidery; Plumbing & Pipe Fitting; Vehicle Body Repair; Welding Fabrication; Air Conditioning & Refrigeration. It has introduced and conducted a number of new courses in accordance with the requirements of the job market such as Scaffolding Course, Heavy Vehicle Driving Course and Computer Aided Drafting and Design Course.

61. The Centre also conducts several short-term programmes aimed at empowering the youth in the country. The Empowering Programme is designed to help the less fortunate community, especially the recipients of welfare assistance and former ex-drug addicts so that they will be able to use their newly acquired knowledge and skills to seek jobs or open up small businesses with the ultimate goal to improve themselves, alleviate poverty and be independent.

62. The Brunei Darussalam National Service Programme (PKBN) which started with three pilot projects launched in December 2011, is now a full-fledged voluntary programme. It is designed specifically to develop youths, both physically and spiritually, in order to make them more resilient, responsible, and well-disciplined. It focuses on 4 main components, namely: i) Self-Resilience, Nationhood and Religious Component; ii) Physical and Discipline Training Component; iii) Community Service Component; and iv) Entrepreneurship Component.

63. The Programme is seen as a 'holistic' self-identity youth development programme, based on the country's national philosophy of the Malay Islamic Monarchy (MIB). It involves a process of education, learned through 'experiential learning' and 'learning by doing'. The facets of the programme are: non-military training; involvement of all Bruneian citizens and permanent residents both male and female within the age group of 16-21 years old; a multi-disciplinary curriculum and training; and participation of government agencies, private sector, NGOs as well as individuals.

64. Brunei Darussalam celebrates National Youth Day in August every year and a Youth Fund was launched in 2012.

F. Promoting education for all (Recommendations 18, 19, 25 and 27)

65. Brunei Darussalam continues to emphasise education as a key to the country's development. As such, it strives towards quality educational institutions in the aspects of first class infrastructure, excellent human resources, research and development, and efficient and effective management system. With that, Brunei Darussalam has allocated a large portion of its national budget to the education sector.

66. The country achieved improvements in The Education for All Development Index (EDI) for 2011, where it ranked 34 from 127 countries with a high EDI of 0.975.

67. Brunei Darussalam also recognises the long-term benefits towards academic achievement by providing high quality care and early childhood education. Therefore, the country continues to implement its National Education System for the 21st Century by the development of the Strategic Plan 2012-2017.

68. This five-year Strategic Plan endeavours to develop the fullest potential of a child through high quality education. The Ministry of Education has three (3) areas of focus, namely: (i) teaching and learning excellence; (ii) professionalism and accountability; and (iii) efficiency and innovativeness. Several initiatives have been prioritised in the Plan, namely: (i) the Early Childhood Care and Education; (ii) the development of the Brunei Teachers' Standards through international best practices; (iii) transformation of Technical and Vocational Education Training including lifelong learning; and (iv) the Information Technology Education Strategic Blueprint initiative (also known as the e-Hijrah). The Blueprint aims to attain higher levels of literacy among students making the country more efficient and maximising the support of teachers by improving their skills and confidence.

69. The Early Childhood Care and Education programmes aim to enhance the holistic development and well-being of young children. Under the programme, the main services provided are:

- Health Services (0–5 years old);
- Private Child Care Centres (0–3 years old); and
- Government (5 years old) and Non-Government (3–5 years old) Pre-school care and education.

70. Brunei Darussalam is undergoing major reform of its Technical and Vocational Education Training to be better aligned with the social and economic needs of the country and Vision Brunei 2035 in order to cater for the different learning needs of individuals.

71. The e-Hijrah works on attaining higher levels of literacy in students through streamlining and maximising the support of teachers by improving their skills and confidence. This initiative will also strengthen the country's global network of other education systems so that they can contribute to and learn from the global education ecosystem.

72. The Brunei Darussalam National Accreditation Council is currently finalising the development of the Brunei Darussalam Qualification Framework which addresses flexible multi-option pathway for adult learners to achieve higher education, taking into account the need to prioritise and utilise resources as efficiently and effectively as possible in all aspects of education and training. It also aims to exceed 90% completion levels of upper secondary education or equivalent by 2017.

73. The Ministry of Education has continuously worked on strengthening the quality of services, such as the Building Improvement of Schools and Infrastructures project; and the building maintenance programme.

74. In January 2012, the country launched an assistance scheme whereby a total of 107 underprivileged students were provided with hostel accommodation to help them attain educational achievement.

G. Access to health services (Recommendations 24 and 25)

75. Brunei Darussalam, through Brunei Vision 2035, continues to emphasise the importance of healthcare as one of the major public investment in human development and enhancing the quality of life of its people. As such, the activities of the society in Brunei Darussalam revolve around its Malay culture and Islamic faith. However, non-Muslims can practise their religions in peace and harmony and this provision is also enshrined in the Constitution.

103. Brunei Darussalam's history depicts very harmonious inter-religious and inter-cultural relations, which can be witnessed especially during the "Eid" celebration in the country when all Muslims have their "open house" and everyone is welcomed. Likewise, similar practice has been observed during the Chinese New Year celebration. This practice and tradition contributes towards the strengthening of social harmony and promotes friendship and understanding amongst communities in the country.

104. Brunei Darussalam also supports any programmes related to religious harmony, in line with the Constitution of Brunei Darussalam and Islamic principles. - While the Government continues to provide scholarships to students to study Medicine, there remain a shortage of qualified local health personnel in the country such as doctors, nurses and other allied health professionals.

Probation

- There is a need for probation officers to enhance their skills and knowledge to better manage both youth and adult offenders where new programmes need to be developed.
- There is also a need for probation officers and supporting agencies to undergo training or perform work attachments, including: standard operating procedures for youth and adult probation services; case management of probationers; and rehabilitative programmes for youth and adult probationers.

112. Brunei Darussalam looks forward to being able to share experiences, expertise and upcoming events, programmes and training from the international community.
