2018, respectively. Information on the sixty-ninth session, held in Geneva from

General Assembly (A/73/38, part three).

I. Introduction

1. In its resolution 47/94, the General Assembly recommended that the sessions of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women should be scheduled, whenever possible, to allow for the timely transmission of the results of those sessions for information to the Commission on the Status of Women.

2. The Committee held its seventieth and seventy-first sessions from 2 to 20 July and from 22 October to 9 November 2018, respectively. At its seventieth session, the Committee established a working group on trafficking in women and girls in the context of global migration, with a view to elaborating a draft general recommendation on the topic. It adopted a joint statement with the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, entitled “Guaranteeing sexual and reproductive health and rights for all women, in particular women with disabilities”. It also endorsed the Guidelines against Intimidation or Reprisals (San José Guidelines) (HRI/MC/2015/6), endorsed at the twenty-seventh meeting of chairpersons of the human rights treaty bodies, held in Costa Rica from 22 to 26 June 2015. The Committee also established the positions of rapporteur and alternate rapporteur on intimidation or reprisals, in accordance with the San José Guidelines. It endorsed a framework of cooperation with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict to advance the rights of women and girls by combating conflict-related sexual violence and supporting the implementation of the Security Council resolutions on women and peace and security.

3. At its seventy-first session, in accordance with article 18 (1) (b) of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women and its decision 21/I, the Committee decided to transmit a final reminder to the Government of Myanmar to submit an exceptional report on the situation of Rohingya women and girls in northern Rakhine State, failing which the Committee would proceed to consider the situation in the absence of a report. The Committee endorsed a framework of cooperation with the Special Rapporteur on violence against women, its causes and consequences. It also decided to hold a side event to the sixty-third session of the Commission on the Status of Women, aimed at reaffirming the interactive links between the Committee and United Nations entities, under the theme “Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discriminations against Women and the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development”. The side event is one in the series of events commemorating the fortieth anniversary of the Convention. The Committee endorsed the concept note on a draft general recommendation on trafficking in women and girls in the context of global migration. It decided to hold a general discussion on trafficking in women and girls in the context of global migration, at its seventy-second, in February 2019.

4. At its seventieth session, the Committee heard briefings via videoconference from the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN-Women), the World Bank Group and the Development Centre of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development on recent developments related to indicator 5.1.1 of the Sustainable Development Goals. The Independent Expert on protection against violence and discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity provided a briefing via videoconference. He informed the Committee on the activities carried out under his mandate and his work to protect lesbian, bisexual and transgender women and intersex persons from gender-based violence and intersecting forms of discrimination. The Committee held an informal consultation with senior officials of the World Health Organization to discuss substantive and policy issues relevant to women’s health. On 5 November, the Special Rapporteur on violence against women provided a briefing to the Committee on the activities carried out under her mandate and her work in addressing violence against women and girls.

5. The Committee continued to engage with partners. Directly following the seventieth session, the Chair of the Committee delivered a statement to the Commission on the Status of Women at its sixty-second session, in New York. Prior to the seventy-first session of the Committee, on 5 October 2018, the Chair presented the report of the Committee on its sixty-eighth, sixty-ninth and seventieth sessions (A/73/38) to the Third Committee of the General Assembly, in New York.

6. At its seventy-first session, the Committee met with members of the Working Group on the issue of discrimination against women in law and in practice to discuss strengthened cooperation between both mechanisms. The Committee and the Working Group decided to issue a joint statement on women human rights defenders on the occasion of the International Women Human Rights Defenders Day, on 29 November 2018. On 31 October 2018, the Committee held an informal meeting with the Executive Director of UN-Women, to discuss ways and means of strengthening cooperation. The Committee also held an informal discussion with the Human Rights Committee under the auspices of the Geneva Academy of International Humanitarian Law and Human Rights to discuss the Human Rights Committee’s general comment No. 36 (2018) on the right to life, its decisions with regard to niqab use in France and the Committees’ approaches to addressing harmful practices that discriminate against women and girls. On 8 November, the Committee held an informal meeting with States parties to discuss the Committee’s engagement with relevant United Nations agencies on gender-related indicators of the Sustainable Development Goals and the implementation of the Convention and the Optional Protocol thereto, in the context of General Assembly resolution 68/268 on strengthening and enhancing the effective functioning of the human rights treaty body system. They also discussed the Committee’s recently adopted general recommendation No. 35 (2017) on gender-based violence against women, updating general recommendation No. 19, general recommendation No. 36 (2017) on the right of girls and women to education and general recommendation No. 37 (2018) on the gender-related dimensions of disaster risk reduction in the context of climate change, and the Committee’s work to elaborate a general recommendation on trafficking in women and girls in the context of global migration. In addition, they discussed the financial and human resource challenges that continue to hamper the work of the Committee with respect to individual communications and inquiries. Those challenges notwithstanding, they also discussed some of the achievements made by the Committee, including that, following the issuance of its views in Angela González Carreño v. Spain (CEDAW/C/58/D/47/2012), the Supreme Court of Spain issued a judgment in which it held that the views of the Committee were legally binding on the State party.

7. The Committee continued to benefit from country-specific information received from United Nations country teams and entities, specialized agencies of the United Nations system, other intergovernmental organizations, national human rights institutions and non-governmental organizations.

8. As at 9 November 2018, the closing date of the seventy-first session of the Committee, there were 189 States parties to the Convention and 109 States parties to the Optional Protocol. A total of 76 States had accepted the amendment to article 20 (1) of the Convention concerning the meeting time of the Committee. To bring the amendment into force, two thirds of the States parties to the Convention (currently 126 States parties) must deposit their instruments of acceptance with the Secretary-General.
