<sup>19</sup> All drugs under international control. This applies to all relevant references in the present resolution.

Concerned further about cases of transnational organized crime, including, as appropriate, drug trafficking and related offences provided for in the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime, that involve vast quantities of assets, which may exceed the resources of some States, and that may weaken governance systems, national economies and the rule of law, and bearing in mind in this regard, inter alia, paragraph 50 of the Plan of Action on International Cooperation towards an Integrated and Balanced Strategy to Counter the World Drug Problem,<sup>21</sup>

Conscious of the need to enhance international cooperation to effectively prevent, detect and deter international transfers of illicitly acquired assets resulting from transnational organized crime, including, as appropriate, drug trafficking and related offences provided for in the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime,

Recognizing that the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime, the United Nations Convention against Corruption<sup>22</sup> and other relevant instruments, including the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances of 1988,<sup>23</sup> as well as relevant resolutions of other United Nations bodies, contribute to a global framework for preventing and countering the illicit flow of funds, including through money-laundering,

Recognizing also that the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime, the United Nations Convention against Corruption and the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances of 1988 provide fundamental global frameworks of international standards for States parties for preventing and combating money-laundering,

Noting with interest also the work of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime on the Global Programme against Money-Laundering, Proceeds of Crime and the Financing of Terrorism and the evaluation of the Global Programme by the Independent Evaluation Unit,

Convinced that technical assistance can play an important role in enhancing the ability of States, including by strengthening capacity and institution-building, to prevent, detect and deter illicit financial flows originating from transnational organized crime, including, as appropriate, drug trafficking and related offences provided for in the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime,

Aware that the availability of information on illicit financial flows resulting from transnational organized crime, including as appropriate, drug trafficking and related offences provided for in the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime, is very limited, and of the need to improve the quality, scope and completeness of such information,

Noting the many methods used by transnational organized crime groups for laundering proceeds of crime, including through illicit trafficking of precious metals and raw materials thereof, and welcoming further research by Member States and other entities to study such methods,

10. Considers that the review by the International Narcotics Control Board of the implementation of the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances of 1988 is also relevant for the work of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice in the area of money-laundering;

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling General Assembly resolutions 55/63 of 4 December 2000, 56/121 of 19 December 2001 and 64/211 of 21 December 2009, concerning combating the criminal misuse of information technologies, as well as other relevant United Nations resolutions,

Reaffirming its resolutions 2004/26 of 21 July 2004, entitled “International cooperation in the prevention, investigation, prosecution and punishment of fraud, the criminal misuse and falsification of identity and related crimes”, and 2007/20 of 26 July 2007, entitled “International cooperation in the prevention, investigation, prosecution and punishment of economic fraud and identity-related crime”,

Reaffirming also Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice resolution 16/2 of 27 April 2007, entitled “Effective crime prevention and criminal justice responses to combat sexual exploitation of children”,

Taking note of resolution 9, on computer-related crimes, adopted by the Eighth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, in which States were called upon to intensify their efforts to more effectively combat computer-related abuses,

Taking into consideration the outcome of the Tenth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders on meeting the challenges of the twenty-first century in combating crime and promoting justice,

Underscoring the importance of paragraph 42 of the Salvador Declaration on Comprehensive Strategies for Global Challenges: Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Systems and Their Development in a Changing World,<sup>28</sup> adopted by the Twelfth United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, in which the Congress invited the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice to consider convening an open-ended intergovernmental expert group to conduct a comprehensive study of the problem of cybercrime and responses to it by Member States, the international community and the private sector, and welcoming the meeting of that expert group held in Vienna from 17 to 21 January 2011,

Expressing its recognition of the work of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice in combating cybercrime,

Bearing in mind that the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime<sup>29</sup> represents a major step forward in combating crimes relating to the use of new information and communications technologies,

Expressing concern that increasingly rapid technological advances have created new possibilities for the criminal misuse of new information and communications technologies,

Recalling the Convention on the Rights of the Child,<sup>30</sup> and the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography,<sup>31</sup>

Reaffirming that the Convention concerning the Prohibition and Immediate Action for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour, 1999 (Convention No. 182), of the International Labour Organization requires States parties to take immediate and effective measures to secure the prohibition and elimination of the use, procuring or offering of a child for prostitution, for the production of pornography or for pornographic performances,

Taking into account the fact that social spaces created using new information and communications technologies are heavily used by children for social interaction,

Stressing that new information and communications technologies and applications are being misused to commit child sexual exploitation crimes and that technical developments have permitted the appearance of crimes such as the production, distribution or possession of child sexual abuse images, audio or video,

Expressing concern that new information and communications technologies have made it possible for criminals to contact children easily and in ways that were not previously possible,

Aware that new information and communications technologies make it possible to construct false identities that facilitate the abuse and/or exploitation of children by criminals,

Reaffirming that children should be afforded the same protection in cyberspace as in the physical world,

Underscoring the importance of cooperation between States and the private sector in combating the use of new information and communications technologies to abuse and/or exploit children,

Underscoring also the importance of international cooperation and coordination in effectively combating the criminal misuse of new information and communications technologies for the purpose of abusing and/or exploiting children,

Decision 20/1

Organization of work for the future sessions of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice

At its 10th meeting, on 15 April 2011, the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, bearing in mind the discussions of the Commission at its twentieth session on how to improve its methods of work:

(a) Decided that for the future sessions of the Commission, starting with its twenty-first session, on an experimental basis, the firm deadline for the submission of draft resolutions to be considered at the part of the session held in the first half of the year would be one month prior to the commencement of that part of the session;

(b) Encouraged Member States to take advantage of the one-month deadline to consider, where appropriate, merging draft resolutions or reducing their length, with a view to enabling the Commission to address a reasonable number of draft resolutions and to increase the efficiency of its work;

(c) Decided that the Secretariat should make the necessary arrangements for the adequate implementation of paragraph (a) above, in particular by ensuring that the draft resolutions are made available in all six official languages of the United Nations at least three weeks before the start of the part of the session of the Commission held in the first half of the year.

Chapter II

Strategic management, budgetary and administrative questions

5. At its 1st, 2nd and 5th meetings, on 11 and 13 April 2011, the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice considered agenda item 3, which read as follows:

“Strategic management, budgetary and administrative questions:

“(a) Work of the working group on improving the governance and financial situation of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime;

“(b) Directives on policy and budgetary issues for the United Nations crime prevention and criminal justice programme.”

6. For its consideration of agenda item 3, the Commission had before it the following:

(a) Report of the Executive Director on the activities of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (E/CN.7/2011/3-E/CN.15/2011/3);

(b) Report of the Executive Director on support for the development and implementation of the regional programmes of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (E/CN.7/2011/6-E/CN.15/2011/6);

(c) Note by the Secretariat on the work of the standing open-ended intergovernmental working group on improving the governance and financial situation of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (E/CN.7/2011/9-E/CN.15/2011/9);

(d) Report of the Executive Director on the implementation of the consolidated budget for the biennium 2010-2011 for the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (E/CN.7/2011/11-E/CN.15/2011/11).

7. An introductory statement was made by the Executive Director. A representative of the Secretariat also made a statement. Statements were made by the representatives of the United States of America, Argentina, Canada, Japan, Chile, Iran (Islamic Republic of), China, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Mexico, Brazil and Germany. Statements were also made by the observers for Indonesia, Lebanon (on behalf of the Group of 77 and China), Sweden, Guatemala, Norway, Israel, France and Spain. The observer for Palestine made a statement. A closing statement was made by the Chair.

A. Deliberations

8. The move by the Office from a project-based to an integrated programme-based approach was regarded as a positive development that could contribute to improving its funding situation. The regional programmatic approach was seen as a tool to ensure ownership by the countries concerned through thorough consultations during the development and implementation of those programmes.

9. The need for UNODC to secure stable, predictable and adequate resources through a widening of the donor base, an increase of the regular budget, an increased share of general-purpose funds and additional extrabudgetary and “soft” earmarked voluntary contributions was stressed. The establishment of partnerships with the private sector was also advocated. Some of those options were considered less likely, given budgetary constraints at the United Nations and within Member States. It was stated that the budgetary challenges facing UNODC were also due to the increase of mandates given to the Office by Member States without the corresponding financial resources.

10. The standing open-ended intergovernmental working group on improving the governance and financial situation of UNODC was acknowledged as a valuable instrument for facilitating dialogue among Member States and between Member States and the Secretariat, particularly as regards the development and implementation of the thematic and regional programmes of UNODC, among other issues. It was noted that the working group needed to progress from the deliberative stage to the stage of being in a position to transmit recommendations for action by the Commission and that, in that regard, results had been less than satisfactory.

11. The need to involve Member States and the Independent Evaluation Unit in the development of a medium-term strategy for the Office for the period 2012-2015, to be presented to the Commission at its reconvened session in 2011, was highlighted.

12. With reference to the report of the Joint Inspection Unit on the review of management and administration in the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (JIU/REP/2010/10), it was stated that the recommendations contained in that report should be followed up and acted on, including by the standing open-ended intergovernmental working group on improving the governance and financial situation of UNODC, for consideration by the Commission at its reconvened session in 2011. The issues of gender balance and geographic diversity in the recruitment of staff were also discussed.

13. In response to remarks by the Executive Director, the view was expressed that UNODC should be both a normative and an analytical agency, and that it should be an agency for the provision of technical assistance to Member States, particularly as regards the implementation of the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and the United Nations Convention against Corruption, as well as standards and norms and their further development. The development of normative and analytical knowledge served as the basis for the provision of technical assistance. Some noted that the technical cooperation work of the Office could justify its evolution towards becoming a specialized agency, as well as the rationalization of its funding system; others found that idea premature. The proposal for informal meetings among like-minded delegations or other means for exchanging ideas and proposals in informal settings was generally welcomed.

14. The role of the Commission as the governing body of UNODC for budgetary, administrative and management matters was also discussed, as was the question of whether that was the appropriate role for a functional commission. The fact that its functions were and should be primarily normative was noted. The similar role played by the Conference of the Parties to the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime, the Conference of the States Parties to the United Nations Convention against Corruption and the crime congresses was also discussed. All of those bodies acted as governing bodies, providing UNODC with growing mandates without the necessary resources to implement them, and their instructions could sometimes be conflicting.

15. The merging of the two Commissions was not considered viable in view of their different constituencies. It was suggested that the proposal of holding joint reconvened sessions for the consideration of budgetary, administrative and management questions, as suggested in the report of the Joint Inspection Unit, could be given consideration for a trial period.

16. Regarding options for improving the methods of work of the Commission, the importance of submitting draft resolutions and decisions no later than one month before the part of each session held in the first half of the year was emphasized, and ideas in that regard were put forward. It was stated that meeting such a deadline would facilitate preparations by Member States and the work of the Commission. The idea of opening that part of the session of the Commission for one day for the submission of draft resolutions, followed by a two-week break so that Member States would have time to consult with their capitals and consider the substantive aspects of the texts, was generally welcomed and seen as meriting further discussion.

17. It was generally noted that the amount of time between the part of the session of the Commission on Narcotic Drugs and the part of the session of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice held in the first half of the year should be longer than had been the case in 2011. It was also suggested that consideration should be given to the possibility of each Commission holding a session every other year, with the two Commissions alternating years.

18. It was suggested that the Commission should not change its working methods without first considering the impact that such changes might have on its work. It was noted that proposed changes for compiling the reports on the sessions of the Commission, in particular reducing or removing summaries of substantive deliberations, needed further exploration. It was also suggested that procedural elements of the report, including financial information, could be presented differently.

19. It was also suggested that documents before the Commission could be streamlined by including more cross-references to other documents, a matter that would require further consideration.

20. UNODC was requested to pay due regard to geographical distribution and gender balance in the recruitment of staff and to keep the relevant recruitment policies in mind during the realignment process.

B. Action taken by the Commission

21. At its fifth meeting, on 13 April 2011, the Commission approved and recommended for adoption by the Economic and Social Council a draft decision (E/CN.15/2011/L.2) introduced by Sweden and the United States on the recommendation of the standing open-ended intergovernmental working group on improving the governance and financial situation of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, pursuant to Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice resolution 18/3. (For the text, see chap. I, sect. C, draft decision II.) Prior to the adoption of the draft decision, a representative of the Secretariat read out a statement on the financial implications of its adoption. (For the text, see E/CN.15/2011/CRP.7, available on the UNODC website.) Also prior to the adoption of the draft decision, the representative of the United States made a statement indicating that both of the sponsors of draft decision E/CN.15/2011/L.2 and of draft resolution E/CN.15/2011/L.3 (see para. 22 below) would have preferred that the two documents had first been sent to the Committee of the Whole for its consideration and that, while there was no objection to the procedure followed, it should not be seen as setting a precedent.

22. At the same meeting, the Commission adopted a draft resolution (E/CN.15/2011/L.3) sponsored by Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and the United States. (For the text, see chap. I, sect. D, resolution 20/1.) Prior to the adoption of the draft resolution, a representative of the Secretariat read out a statement on the financial implications of its adoption. (For the text, see E/CN.15/2011/CRP.7, available on the UNODC website.) Following the adoption of the resolution, the representative of the United Kingdom made a statement noting that her Government interpreted the concept of “sufficient share of the regular budget” in operative paragraph 12 of the resolution as being consistent with the need for further streamlining and rationalization within the Secretariat and other United Nations entities.

23. At the same meeting, the Commission adopted a draft resolution entitled “Implementation of the budget for the biennium 2010-2011 for the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Fund” (E/CN.7/2011/11-E/CN.15/2011/11, annex IV). (For the text, see chap. I, sect. D, resolution 20/2.)

24. At its 10th meeting, on 15 April, the Commission approved and recommended for adoption by the Economic and Social Council a draft resolution (E/CN.15/2011/L.9), as revised, sponsored by Colombia (on behalf of the Group of Latin American and Caribbean States), Indonesia (on behalf of the Group of 77 and China), Sweden and the United States. (For the text, see chap. I, sect. B, draft resolution II.)

Chapter III

25. At its 3rd, 4th and 5th meetings, on 12 and 13 April 2011, the Commission considered agenda item 4, which read as follows:

A. Summary by the Chair

29. At the end of the thematic discussion, the Chair summarized the salient points as follows.

30. The use of the Internet and other information and communications technologies has increased exponentially at the global level in the past two decades.

Children who have access to those technologies benefit from them, but at the same time are exposed to serious risks. States should consider it a matter of priority to develop safeguards to protect them.

31. The importance of international and regional legal instruments, such as the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime, as well as the legal instruments developed by the Council of Europe, was highlighted.

32. States should devise effective national measures for the prevention, investigation and prosecution of cybercrime offences, in particular in the area of child abuse and exploitation, and for the improvement of international cooperation. Furthermore, States should take measures to protect victims of such abuse and exploitation.

33. There was a need for data collection and analysis and for the sharing of such data among States.

34. National initiatives, including preventive measures, educational programmes, awareness-raising campaigns, the establishment of hotlines, the adoption of legislation, law enforcement efforts and capacity-building activities for law enforcement and criminal justice officials, as well as the provision of psychological counselling and rehabilitation services to victims, were discussed.

35. The need to address technical challenges posed by the misuse of technology in the abuse and exploitation of children was also noted, as was the need to devote more resources to the development of technical solutions in order to prevent access by children to harmful online content, to alert parents or authorities to suspicious activities and to facilitate investigative efforts by law enforcement authorities.

36. Cooperation and partnerships between national authorities and the private sector, including Internet service providers, were essential in the identification of technical and investigative solutions to the misuse of information and communications technologies.

37. The need for technical and capacity-building assistance programmes was raised.

38. The role of the Commission in further developing standards, norms and guidelines was stressed.

B. Workshop on law enforcement cooperation in combating child pornography cases

A. Deliberations

1. Ratification and implementation of the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and the Protocols thereto

Work of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in facilitating the ratification and implementation of the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime

44. Discussions under agenda item 5 (a) covered the following topics: ratification and implementation of the Organized Crime Convention and the Protocols thereto; the need for a mechanism to review the implementation of the Convention and the Protocols; national initiatives in the areas of trafficking in persons, trafficking in natural resources, crimes affecting marine living resources and trafficking in cultural property; and using the Convention as a basis for international cooperation.

45. Emphasis was placed on the need for universal ratification of the Convention and the Protocols and their full implementation. Application of the Convention to new and emerging forms of transnational organized crime, in particular to trafficking in cultural property whenever there was involvement of organized criminal groups, was highlighted.

46. Reference was made to the pilot programme that had been developed within the framework of the recommendations of the Open-ended Intergovernmental Meeting of Experts on Possible Mechanisms to Review Implementation of the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and the Protocols thereto. It was emphasized that such a programme could assist the relevant working group, which would hold its first meeting in Vienna from 17 to 19 May 2011. It was stated that full implementation would be achieved only through an effective mechanism to review implementation of the Convention and the Protocols, and it was emphasized that any review mechanism adopted should be transparent and inclusive.

47. Attention was drawn to the fact that transnational organized crime undermined development, political stability and legitimate economic activity. Raising awareness of the potential of the Convention with regard to facilitating international cooperation needed to be mainstreamed within criminal justice systems.

2. Ratification and implementation of the United Nations Convention against Corruption

Work of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in facilitating the ratification and implementation of the United Nations Convention against Corruption

48. The United Nations Convention against Corruption was recognized as the global standard in anti-corruption, and speakers welcomed the increase in the number of States parties and called for its full implementation.

49. The operationalization of the mechanism to review implementation of the Convention was welcomed, and several speakers reported on their countries' participation in the reviews. The need to provide strong support for the mechanism and the work of the Implementation Review Group was stressed, as was the need for States parties to work towards funding future requirements through the regular budget.

50. The recommendations and conclusions of the established working groups of the Conference of the States Parties to the Convention were welcomed. In particular, the Secretariat was asked to continue its information-gathering exercise on good practices in the implementation of chapter II of the Convention.

51. Several speakers welcomed the fact that the International Anti-Corruption Academy had become an international organization, and acknowledged the significant role it could play in effectively promoting implementation of the Convention.

52. Reference was made to the valuable work of the Group of 20 anti-corruption working group, in which UNODC was a participant, and the contribution of its action plan towards full implementation of the Convention.

53. Speakers reported on their Governments' efforts to implement the Convention through the adoption or amendment of legislation to bring domestic legal frameworks in line with the Convention. The creation and strengthening of specialized institutions involved in the fight against corruption, as well as awareness-raising and education campaigns, were emphasized, as was the importance of involving civil society and the private sector.

3. Ratification and implementation of the international instruments to prevent and combat terrorism

Work of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in facilitating the ratification and implementation of the international instruments to prevent and combat terrorism

54. The role of the United Nations in coordinating multilateral efforts to counter terrorism was highlighted as being essential to maximize synergies, avoid duplication and ensure a holistic approach in line with the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy. The need for strengthened partnerships and cooperation with all relevant actors, including United Nations entities (the Counter-Terrorism Executive Directorate and the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force) and international, regional and subregional organizations was emphasized. The importance of a criminal justice response based on the international legal instruments against terrorism and respect for the rule of law and for human rights was emphasized, as well as the importance of international and regional cooperation in criminal matters and action at the national and regional levels to counter terrorism.

55. Support was expressed for the work of the Terrorism Prevention Branch of UNODC to assist requesting States through the provision of technical assistance for the ratification and implementation of the international legal instruments against terrorism. The need for continued tailor-made capacity-building for criminal justice officials was cited, as well as the need for the development of thematic training workshops and tools. Adequate financial resources were considered necessary to implement the relevant UNODC mandates.

56. Reference was made to the Convention on the Suppression of Unlawful Acts Relating to International Civil Aviation and its supplementary Protocol, both adopted at Beijing on 10 September 2010, and their contribution to civil aviation security, and to the symposium on countering terrorism, hosted by UNODC on 16 and 17 March 2011, addressing connections between terrorism and related criminal activities.

57. Other issues raised included money-laundering, financing of terrorism, hostage-taking, financial intelligence units, cybercrime, the definition of terrorism and self-determination.

4. Other crime prevention and criminal justice matters

58. Several speakers referred to the problem of piracy off the coast of Somalia and highlighted the commitment of their Governments to combating that serious threat in a comprehensive manner. The work of UNODC in supporting counter-piracy efforts, particularly relating to the prosecution of suspected pirates, was welcomed, as well as its efforts in assisting countries in enhancing the capacity of their prosecution services and judiciary with regard to the task of ensuring the legality of proceedings and respect for human rights. It was noted that the conduct of prosecutors should be governed by an ethical code, and reference was made to the Standards of Professional Responsibility and Statement of the Essential Duties and Rights of Prosecutors, developed by the International Association of Prosecutors, which had been acknowledged by the Commission in its resolution 17/2 of 18 April 2008.

59. The continuing work of UNODC on the Criminal Justice Handbook Series and other practical tools to assist policymakers and professionals in fighting crime was also referred to.

5. Other activities in support of the work of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, in particular activities of the United Nations crime prevention and criminal justice programme network, non-governmental organizations and other bodies

60. Appreciation was expressed for the work of the institutes of the United Nations crime prevention and criminal justice programme network. It was noted that UNODC and the institutes should maintain a dialogue to avoid duplication of efforts.

B. Action taken by the Commission

61. At its 9th meeting, on 15 April, the Commission adopted a revised draft resolution (E/CN.15/2011/L.13/Rev.1), as further revised, sponsored by Belarus, Bolivia (Plurinational State of), Ecuador, El Salvador, Guatemala, Indonesia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Lebanon, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, the Philippines, Qatar, the Republic of Korea, the Russian Federation, Tajikistan, Thailand, Turkey, Ukraine and Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of). (For the text, see chap. I, sect. D, resolution 20/3.) Prior to the adoption of the revised draft resolution, a representative of the Secretariat read out a financial statement. 62. At its 10th meeting, the Commission considered a revised draft resolution to be recommended for approval by the Economic and Social Council for adoption by the General Assembly (E/CN.15/2011/L.6/Rev.1), as further revised, sponsored by Albania, Algeria, Australia, Canada, Colombia, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Hungary (on behalf of the European Union), Japan, Liechtenstein, Mexico, Nigeria, the Philippines, the Russian Federation, Serbia and Turkey. (For the text, see chap. I, sect. A, draft resolution II.) Prior to the adoption of the revised draft resolution, a representative of the Secretariat read out a financial statement. (For the text, see chap. I, sect. D, resolution 20/4.) Prior to the adoption of the revised draft resolution, a representative of the Secretariat read out a financial statement. (For the text, see E/CN.15/2011/CRP.7, available on the UNODC website.) Following adoption, the representative of China stated that, while his delegation had engaged in the negotiation of the draft resolution, it was of the view that the Conference of the Parties to the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime was the appropriate body for the adoption of the draft resolution.

64. Also at the same meeting, the Commission adopted a revised draft resolution (E/CN.15/2011/L.15/Rev.1), as further revised, sponsored by Chile, Costa Rica, Guatemala, Indonesia, Kuwait, Norway and the Philippines. Following adoption, the representative of Turkey and the observers for Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of), Colombia and Peru stated that they were not parties to the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea and that the reference to that Convention in the resolution thus did not create any additional obligations for their Governments.

Chapter V

67. Introductory statements were also made by the observer for South Africa in his capacity as chair of the open-ended intergovernmental working group to conduct a comprehensive study on the problem of cybercrime, and by the representative of the United Nations Interregional Crime and Justice Research Institute, pursuant to Commission decision 19/1. The Commission heard statements by the representatives of Canada, the United States, Germany, Mexico, Argentina and Iran (Islamic Republic of). Statements were also made by the observers for Italy, South Africa, Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of), the United Arab Emirates, Colombia and Zimbabwe.

A. Deliberations

68. The efforts of the Secretariat to collect comparable information on crime and criminal justice statistics and to offer related technical support to Member States were welcomed. Official administrative statistics and data from crime victimization surveys offered important complementary information on the nature and extent of crime. Recent efforts to improve the United Nations Survey of Crime Trends and Operations of Criminal Justice Systems, in line with the recommendations of the open-ended intergovernmental expert working group established by Economic and Social Council resolution 2009/25, were also noted.

69. It was noted that the Commission represented a key forum for the identification of new forms of crime with a view to developing effective policies. It was observed that there was a need to further develop information and data on new, emerging and evolving forms of crime, including cybercrime, maritime piracy, economic fraud, illicit mining of and trafficking in precious metals, identity-related crime, transnational organized crime at sea, including smuggling of migrants, trafficking in persons, and, in the view of some delegations, crime within the fishing industry, environmental crime and the counterfeiting of products. Longitudinal assessments of specific types of crime were highlighted as important, and the initiative of UNODC to collect and analyse high-frequency data on crime and underlying economic and development-related factors was welcomed. Member States were urged to report information on crime trends to UNODC in a timely manner and on an ongoing basis. It was stated that, in preparing reports, the Secretariat should utilize data obtained from authorized sources of Member States, consulting them where appropriate, in order to avoid the presentation of inaccurate information.

70. Concern was expressed about attempts to establish generalized connections between crime and international peace and security.

71. Reference was made to the role of private security services in crime prevention and their contribution to the development of related strategies in national settings. It was noted that the exercise of police powers remained the prerogative of the State.

72. It was noted that a comprehensive response to cybercrime might have to include a range of elements, including criminal law, the possibility of developing a universal international convention on cybercrime, technical assistance and other measures that would link cybercrime to a broader context of development and the use of information and communications technologies in general. The issue of the timing of the provision of technical assistance in relation to the comprehensive study was also raised.

73. Delegations outlined their national efforts to address the issues of cybercrime and cybersecurity and stressed that the unique needs of developing countries should be addressed. It was suggested that the Secretariat should endeavour to schedule meetings of the expert group to conduct a comprehensive study of cybercrime and of the core group of experts on identity-related crime consecutively.

74. The counterfeiting of products and crimes that had a negative impact on the environment were seen as emerging phenomena with a transnational organized crime dimension that merited increased attention by the Commission.

75. Delegations referred to economic fraud and identity-related crime and their increase over the past few years as a result of, among other things, the spread of information and communications technologies. The United Nations study on fraud and the criminal misuse and falsification of identity (E/CN.15/2007/8 and Add.1-3), submitted to the Commission at its sixteenth session, had provided a baseline assessment for more concrete work at both the national and international levels. Reference was made to the work of the core group of experts on identity-related crime, which was established by UNODC to develop strategies, facilitate further research and agree on practical action.

Chapter VI

Follow-up to the Twelfth United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice and preparations for the Thirteenth United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice

83. At its 8th meeting, on 14 April 2011, the Commission considered agenda item 7, entitled “Follow-up to the Twelfth United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice and preparations for the Thirteenth United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice”.

84. For its consideration of the item, the Commission had before it the following:

(a) Report of the Secretary-General on follow-up to the Twelfth United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice and preparations for the Thirteenth United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice (E/CN.15/2011/15);

(b) Recommendations to improve the efficiency of the process involved in the United Nations congresses on crime prevention and criminal justice (E/CN.15/2011/CRP.5).

85. An introductory statement was made by the Secretariat. Statements were made by the representatives of the United States, Canada, Thailand and the Republic of Korea. Statements were also made by the observers for Finland, Italy, Norway, Sweden and Qatar. A statement was made by the observer for the Raoul Wallenberg Institute on behalf of the members of the United Nations crime prevention and criminal justice programme network.

A. Deliberations

86. Some delegations provided information on action taken in their countries to implement the Salvador Declaration, adopted by the Twelfth Congress.

87. Some delegations underlined the political significance and added value of the crime congresses as the largest gathering of experts, both governmental and non-governmental, to discuss crime prevention and criminal justice issues.

88. In exploring ways and means to improve the efficiency of the crime congresses, many speakers made reference to the recommendations of the Intergovernmental Group of Experts on Lessons Learned from United Nations Congresses on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice at its meeting held in Bangkok from 15 to 18 August 2006 (E/CN.15/2007/6, sect. IV).

89. Some delegations stated that the discussion on ways and means to improve the efficiency of the crime congresses should be continued at the twenty-first session of the Commission in order to further consider, among other things, how to better structure the congresses and the final outcome document.

90. In relation to the preparation of the crime congresses, speakers highlighted the need for advance planning and close coordination with all parties involved and for the timely preparation of a streamlined agenda. Some speakers noted that a multi-year programme of work for the preparation of the congresses would enable the Commission to begin consultations on a draft declaration at its session before the congress.

91. Another recommendation was to restructure the high-level segment of the crime congress, holding it at the beginning of the crime congress and reducing its duration. Some speakers highlighted the need to harmonize the topics of the workshops with the agenda items for the substantive deliberations of the crime congress.

92. Discussion was also devoted to the declaration as the outcome of the congress, and it was suggested that the final declaration should be focused on the items on the agenda and the discussions at the crime congress, which could lead to a robust political statement. It was also suggested, in that regard, that the text of the declaration should be formulated and negotiated only on the basis of the results, conclusions and recommendations emerging from the deliberations during the crime congress.

93. It was recommended that the Commission thoroughly review the duration of the crime congresses and the holding of regional preparatory meetings.

B. Action taken by the Commission

94. At its 10th meeting, on 15 April, the Commission considered a revised draft resolution to be recommended for approval by the Economic and Social Council for adoption by the General Assembly (E/CN.15/2011/L.16/Rev.1) sponsored by Canada, Indonesia (on behalf of the Group of 77 and China), Mexico, Norway and the Republic of Korea. (For the text, see chap. I, sect. A, draft resolution I.)

Chapter VII

Use and application of United Nations standards and norms in crime prevention and criminal justice

95. At its 8th and 9th meetings, on 14 and 15 April 2011, the Commission considered agenda item 8, entitled “Use and application of United Nations standards and norms in crime prevention and criminal justice”. For its consideration of the item, the Commission had before it the following documents:

(a) Report of the Executive Director on the activities of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (E/CN.7/2011/3-E/CN.15/2011/3);

(b) Report of the Secretary-General on strengthening the rule of law through improved integrity and capacity of prosecution services (E/CN.15/2011/8);

(c) Report of the Secretary-General on the use and application of United Nations standards and norms in crime prevention and criminal justice (E/CN.15/2011/12);

(d) Report of the Secretary-General on national and international efforts for child justice reform, in particular through improved coordination in technical assistance (E/CN.15/2011/13).

96. The Secretariat made an introductory statement. Statements were made by the representatives of the United States, Canada, the Russian Federation and Germany. A statement was also made by the observer for Italy. Statements were also made by the observers for the Academic Council on the United Nations System, the International Commission for Catholic Prison Pastoral Care and the Friends World Committee for Consultation.

Deliberations

97. Discussions ranged over the following specific topics: new instruments in the area of violence against women and women in detention and in custodial and non-custodial settings; efforts in the area of child justice reform, juvenile justice and child victims; standards on the integrity and capacity of prosecution services and, in general, the possible review of some of the United Nations standards and norms in crime prevention and criminal justice. In addition, the methodology of the Commission’s work on that item was discussed, in particular its review of the implementation of the standards and norms by Member States. A suggestion was made to amend the title of the item for future sessions of the Commission.

98. The adoption by the General Assembly of the United Nations Rules for the Treatment of Women Prisoners and Non-custodial Measures for Women Offenders (Bangkok Rules) and of the updated Model Strategies and Practical Measures on the Elimination of Violence against Women in the Field of Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice was welcomed.

99. Speakers were in favour of following up on the Salvador Declaration, in which Member States had invited the Commission to consider reviewing and, if necessary, updating and supplementing the United Nations standards and norms in crime prevention and criminal justice, in particular with regard to the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners.

100. Speakers welcomed the report on coordination of efforts in child justice reform (E/CN.15/2011/13) and stressed its importance for achieving efficient and effective results, including through the Interagency Panel on Juvenile Justice. It was also noted that the standards and norms in the area of juvenile justice formed the basis for a review of the implementation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child. It was stressed that a sound legislative basis was an essential part of ensuring a fair and effective justice system for children and youth and that it was also necessary to address the conditions underlying criminal behaviour if meaningful, long-term solutions were to be achieved.

101. It was stated that existing and future UNODC training curricula and technical assistance projects should support the practical application of the standards and norms and put into practice the United Nations values of equality and fairness.

102. UNODC work conducted with UNICEF using technology to promote training of professionals in the area of child victims and witnesses was commended, especially as a response to the abuse of technology for the abuse of children. Information on national practices to address the use of the Internet to commit crime against children was shared, and an offer was made to share additional lessons learned with other States.

103. The report of the Secretary-General on strengthening the rule of law through improved integrity and capacity of prosecution services (E/CN.15/2011/8) was welcomed, and the importance of the guidelines for prosecutors was stressed. It was recommended that UNODC work with the International Association of Prosecutors to develop training materials and good practices on how those standards could be applied to prosecution operations and practices. It was noted that the standards and norms on prosecution and the role of lawyers had not received sufficient attention thus far, and it was hoped that future work would be done to apply and disseminate the guidelines.

Chapter VIII

A. Deliberations

106. The Commission considered a series of amendments to the draft decision, including with regard to the deadline for the submission of draft resolutions, the preparation of documentation and the report on the session. The issue of the working methods of the Commission should be the subject of further consideration, intersessionally, including in the standing open-ended intergovernmental working group on improving the governance and financial situation of UNODC.

107. A proposal was made regarding possible sub-themes under the prominent theme for the twenty-first session, to be considered by the Commission during the intersessional period, as follows: the role of law enforcement in responding to violence against migrants, migrant workers and their families; links to organized crime; victimization of migrants, migrant workers and their families, and best practices to address vulnerabilities that can develop within policies and programming; the particular vulnerabilities of women and girl migrants; crime prevention strategies, measures, mechanisms and tools, including collaborative efforts between affected States; the promotion of legal means of migration; and improvements in reporting and collecting crime and victimization data.
