terrorism in various parts of the world, which claim innocent lives, cause destruction and displace people, and rejecting the use of violence, regardless of motivation,

Concerned that terrorist groups have sought to exploit grievances caused by the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) pandemic to radicalize to, recruit for, incite the commission of, and conduct terrorist attacks, including through the use of information and communications technologies, and inviting Member States to anticipate, monitor and address the short-, medium- and long-term impacts of the pandemic on the evolution of the global terrorist threat,

Reaffirming that the acts, methods and practices of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations are activities aimed at the denial of human rights, fundamental freedoms and democracy, at threatening the sovereignty, territorial integrity and the security of States, at impeding the enjoyment of political, civil, economic, social and cultural rights, including the right to life, liberty and security, and at destabilizing Governments, and that the international community should take the steps necessary to enhance cooperation to prevent and combat terrorism in a decisive, unified, coordinated, inclusive, transparent and human rights-based, gender-responsive manner, addressing the conditions conducive to terrorism,

Reaffirming its respect for the sovereignty, territorial integrity, independence and unity of all States in accordance with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations,

Reaffirming the primary responsibility of Member States and their respective national institutions in preventing and countering terrorism and violent extremism conducive to terrorism, concerned that terrorists continue to endeavour to exploit underlying conditions in some countries, such as limited reach of Governments and lack of capacity to deliver essential services by law enforcement and security institutions, and emphasizing that enhancing the capabilities and capacities of State institutions, where applicable and upon request, to prevent and counter terrorism is a pivotal component for successful efforts against terrorism,

Conscious that there are a number of drivers underlying radicalization to terrorism and that development based on the principles of social justice, inclusion and equal opportunities, including the building of effective, accountable and inclusive institutions, can contribute to the prevention of terrorism and violent extremism conducive to terrorism and to the promotion of inclusive, open and resilient societies, notably through education, and affirming the determination of Member States to work towards conflict resolution, to confront oppression, to eradicate poverty, to promote sustained economic growth, sustainable development, global prosperity, good governance, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all and the rule of law, to improve intercultural understanding and to promote respect for all,

Recognizing that international cooperation and any measures taken by Member States to prevent and combat terrorism, as well as to prevent violent extremism and tackle the conditions conducive to terrorism, require a comprehensive approach and a multidimensional strategy which must fully comply with their obligations under international law, including the Charter of the United Nations, in particular the purposes and principles thereof, and relevant international conventions and protocols, in particular international human rights law, international refugee law and international humanitarian law,

Noting with appreciation the continued contribution of the United Nations entities, including the Office of Counter-Terrorism, and its Counter-Terrorism Centre, and the subsidiary bodies of the Security Council, to the work of the Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact entities in support of the implementation of the Strategy by Member States, and noting in this regard the establishment of the Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Platform,

Mindful of the need to enhance the role of the United Nations and the specialized agencies, within their mandates, in the implementation of the Strategy, and recalling in this regard its resolution 71/291 of 15 June 2017, by which it established the Office of Counter-Terrorism, and recalling its competencies and functions as set out in the report of the Secretary-General on the capability of the United Nations system to assist Member States, upon their request, in implementing the Strategy² and endorsed in resolution 71/291, including providing leadership on the General Assembly counter-terrorism mandates entrusted to the Secretary-General, enhancing coordination and coherence across the Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact entities to ensure the balanced implementation of the four pillars of the Strategy, strengthening the delivery of United Nations counter-terrorism capacity-building assistance to Member States, improving visibility, advocacy and resource mobilization for United Nations counter-terrorism efforts, and ensuring that due priority is given to counter-terrorism across the United Nations system and that the important work on preventing violent extremism as and when conducive to terrorism is firmly rooted in the Strategy,

Recognizing further that national strategies to counter terrorism and violent extremism conducive to terrorism can be more effective when efforts at the subnational and community levels are involved to allow for impactful locally initiated, locally championed and locally owned solutions which enable inclusive, sustainable and community-led measures that are responsive to local needs, culturally sensitive and aligned to local political and socioeconomic development,

Expressing deep concern that acts of sexual and gender-based violence, including sexual violence in conflict, are known to be part of the strategic objectives, tactics and ideology of certain terrorist groups and are used as an instrument to increase their power by supporting financing and recruitment and through the destruction of communities,

Noting the important and positive contribution of youth in efforts to prevent and counter terrorism and violent extremism conducive to terrorism, as well as for the promotion of peace and security, and in this regard expressing concern about the danger of recruitment and radicalization to terrorism, including through information and communications technologies and in prisons,

Recognizing the important contribution to the counter-terrorism efforts of Member States and Global Counter-Terrorism Coordination Compact entities derived from dialogue with and, as appropriate, support for and partnership with civil society actors committed to the principles and objectives of the Charter of the United Nations, as part of a whole-of-society approach, similarly recognizing that civil society actors, in particular women-led civil society organizations, should be further enabled to contribute to the goals of the Strategy, and in this regard noting the Secretary-General's guidance to the United Nations system,⁴

Affirming the importance of seeking concrete solutions to mitigate the potential negative impacts when counter-terrorism legislation and other measures are applied contrary to international law, which may harm collective counter-terrorism efforts and infringe upon human rights, including by impeding the work and endangering development, peacebuilding and impartial humanitarian action and civil society,
